

FIFTEENTH NAVAL HISTORY SYMPOSIUM CALL FOR PAPERS

The Department of History of the United States Naval Academy is pleased to announce that the Fifteenth Naval History Symposium will meet on Wednesday and Thursday, 12-13 September 2001, on the grounds of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. Paper sessions will be held on 12-13 September, and there will be a keynote address and reception on the evening of Wednesday, 12 September. We are especially pleased to announce a generous gift from Mr. Bill Daniels in honor of Dr. John McMullen (USNA, '40) to underwrite the symposium as part of the new John McMullen Seapower Forum, 12-15 September 2001. We expect that this generous support will enable us to lower the registration fee. In addition to the two days of the History Symposium, guests may choose to stay in Annapolis on Friday and Saturday for sessions on seapower and national security in the present and future. We hope that you will make plans to be with us in September, whether for all four days or only two. Further information about the Naval History Symposium and the John McMullen Seapower Forum can be found on the World Wide Web at <http://www.nadn.navy.mil/Users/history/wroberts/nhs/index.html>.
